|---|---|-----|---|
| T | F | 1. | The TTAB is an administrative court with jurisdiction over issues dealing with the registrability of marks but no jurisdiction over issues of trademark infringement or unfair competition. |
| T | F | 2. | There are four kinds of proceedings over which the TTAB has jurisdiction. |
| T | F | 3. | The standing of a party in the position of plaintiff is always presumed to exist in a TTAB proceeding. |
| T | F | 4. | In an opposition based on likelihood of confusion, the opposer must own a registered mark. |
| T | F | 5. | Any person who feels personally offended by the mark of an application published in the PTO Official Gazette may file an opposition. |
| T | F | 6. | There is an unlimited period of time after the publication of an application in the Official Gazette to file an opposition. |
| T | F | 7. | The accession by the United States to the Madrid Protocol for the international registration of trademarks did not result in any change of practice before the TTAB. |
| T | F | 8. | In a notice of opposition based on likelihood of confusion the opposer has to plead only that the marks are similar. |
| T | F | 9. | If the mark of the application is similar to the mark of the opposer's registration, the TTAB requires no additional evidence to sustain the opposition. |
| T | F | 10. | A descriptive word may be refused registration if an opposer proves that the word describes some attribute of the product or service. |
